PASTOR CRITICIZES WAGES

Rev. F. P. George Attacks Factories That Make Employes Charity Objects

A bitter denunciation against factories, which he said are forcing many of their employes to work at wages which make them objects of charity, was hurled by Rev. F. P. George, pastor of the Community church in an address at the opening session of the two-day convention of the Brick masons and Plasterers International Union which opened this morning in the Eagles hall.

The government has fixed the salary of $5,000 a year as necessary if a man is to enjoy the comforts of life, with a few of the luxuries the speaker declared, while $1,200 has been fixed as the lowest salary a man may receive yet still enjoy the bare necessities, while wages of $900 are not sufficient to enable a man to have the bare necessities without depending upon charity, the pastor declared, where the open shop prevails.

200 Delegates Register

Convention headquarters are being maintained at the Hotel Harding where 200 delegates had registered when the convention went into session at 9 o'clock.

A welcome to the visitors was extended by City Solicitor George Geran on the part of the city. Geran expressed the pleasure of the citizens in welcoming the convention to this city. "While we have no formal key to present," Mr. Geran said, "we want you to feel the city welcomes you with every feeling of hospitality and hope as when you return to your homes you will have a kind word to say for our city and the manner in which you have been treated."

Reverend George whose address followed that of Mr. Geran was frank in his criticism of local labor conditions which he said were due to the open

MEXICO ROCKED FOR SIX HOURS BY QUAKE

Shock Is Recorded on Seismograph at St. Louis University

St. Louis, Mo., June 18—An earthquake lasting at least six hours rocked Mexico Saturday night, according to the record of the St. Louis University seismograph here, Father MacElwane, seismologist told International News Service today.

The quake was one of the heaviest recorded on the seismograph here for several months. The tremors started at 9:24:31 Saturday night, and from calculations were estimated to have centered between 1,700 and 1,800 miles from St. Louis.

The record of the earthquake was one of the most perfect received on the local instrument, the seismologist said.

90 DAYS TO ACT

State Supreme Court May Decide Imprisonment For Hickman

San Francisco, June 18—The State Supreme Court had not yet indicated today when it would give a decision on the William Edward Hickman appeal. Hickman's attorneys submitted briefs less than 30 days ago, and the court has 90 days in which to act. It is not thought, however, that the court will utilize the full time limit.

The question to be decided by the court is whether or not the law under which Hickman was convicted, is constitutional. The slayer of Marion Parker, Los Angeles school girl, pleaded "not guilty by reason of insanity." In the event the court finds the law unconstitutional, Hickman then faces life imprisonment for the murder of C. Ivy Tems, a druggist. An adverse finding would result in death on the gallows.

REED BELIEVES NOMINATION IS NOT CINCHED

Democratic Race Still Rests With Convention, Senator Says

FEELS CONFIDENT

Claims Hoover Weakest Candidate; Attacks Selection of Curtis

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Star Staff Correspondent

Kansas City, June 18—Most Democrats, particularly those from the north and west, may believe that Al Smith's nomination at Houston next week is cinched, but Senator James A. Reed of Missouri is not one of them. To him, the Democratic presidential nomination still rests on the laps of the Gods.

The Missourian said as much today—and with emphasis.

"Nobody has been nominated yet," he said somewhat grimly. "I'm going to Houston, and I think I am going to win. No one can tell what the Houston convention will do."

The Smith claims of approximately 700 votes now pledged or committed do not perturb the fiery Missourian.

"Why," he countered, "should such misleading and over-estimated claims be answered? The convention itself will do the nominating, not the managers of this or that candidate. If pre-convention claims nominated candidates instead of the votes of the delegates themselves the political history of the United States would have been changed many times."

Concerning his own chances of the nomination, Senator Reed had little to say other than that he is going to Houston with a feeling of confidence. He declined to speak of his delegate strength, present and prospective, or of that of other aspirants. He chooses rather to talk of the forthcoming campaign.

"Herbert Hoover is the weakest can-

WILL DECIDE STOCK INCREASE TUESDAY

Stockholders of Marion Steam Shovel Co. Expected to Approve New Dividend

Whether or not stockholders of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. will approve the 100 per cent stock dividend proposed by company officials last May will be determined at a special meeting to be held at the company offices here Tuesday. The meeting will open at 11 o'clock.

The date for the meeting was set last May following the announcement of the proposed stock dividend. It is expected that the dividend will be approved by the stockholders.

The dividend, if approved, will increase the common stock from $50,000 to $100,000.

Since the separation of the former stock units, including one share of preferred and one-half share of common, and the placing of the latter on the New York curb market, the common stock has shown a rapid advance in value. The stock closed Saturday at $80 with 2,000 shares involved in the transactions for the day.

The common stock was split originally at $1.50 a half share. One share of preferred and with a par value of $100 and a half share of common selling as a unit for $101.50.

Flood Waters Cause Break In Levees of River; 2,000 Families Flee From Homes

Nearly 100,000 Acres of Lowlands Are Flooded, Destroying Crops Valued at $1,000,000; Refugees Not in Need of Aid at Present

Poplar Bluff, Mo., June 18—The work of caring for 2,000 homeless families became paramount today as waters of the raging St. Francis River began to recede after two major breaks through its protecting levees.

Floor waters spread over approximately 100,000 acres of low lying farm lands, destroying wheat, corn and cotton crops with a resulting damage estimated at more than $1,000,000.

The third rise of the river came sooner than expected and sent the raging St. Francis out of its banks in a 275-foot crevasse a few miles north of the break Saturday.

Considerable anxiety was felt for the condition of the levees of the Varney River, near Benath, Mo., today as the waters from the St. Francis spread and were added to the volume of the already swollen Varney River.

A 600-foot levee seven miles north of the new break was being carefully guarded to prevent a new break in that territory.

Red Cross officials said there was no immediate danger for the thousands of homeless, as nearly all had had sufficient warning to make full preparations against eventuality.

Many of the refugees were reported to have taken several days' rations of food with them when they left their homes.

LAND RELIEF PARTY TO CONDUCT SEARCH

Steamer Unable to Move Through Ice-Floes at Cape North

Rome, June 18—Unable to make any progress farther northward because of the ice-floes which hem it in on all sides, the steamer, Braganza, has landed a well-equipped relief party at Cape North to search for Gen. Umberto Nobile and the marooned crew of the dirigible Italia, radio advices received here stated today.

The relief party is commanded by Captain Zora. It consists of two sledges drawn by nine dogs each. The sledges are loaded with medicines and other supplies for Nobile and his men. Two guides with long Arctic experience are leading the party.

Reports that three members of the crew of the Italia were rescued by a searching party from the ice-breaker Hobby were stamped as groundless by Naval Undersecretary Biraal.

COLUMBIA MAY NOT TRY ATLANTIC TRIP

Mabel Boll Is Disheartened by Success of Flying Rival

Harbor Grace, N. F., June 18—Disheartened because her flying rival, Miss Amelia Earhart, was first to make a non-stop flight over the Atlantic, Miss Mabel Boll, of the plane Columbia, intimated that her own flight may be cancelled. It is reported that the Columbia will fly back to the United States.

Pilot Oliver C. Le Boutillier said he preferred to attempt a flight to Europe, but that the future plans were uncertain.

"Our flight was a failure from the first due to misleading weather reports," said the pilot. "I believe the Friendship's crew depended largely upon meteorological reports from American ice patrol ships."

PLEAD GUILTY TO ROBBERY, HELD UNDER $10,000 BOND

Sandusky, June 18—Pleading guilty to robbery, Ruth Kelley, 21 Portsmouth, O., and Nellie Wade, Charleston, W. Va., were bound over to the grand jury here under bond of $10,000 by Justice of the Peace L. B. Merriam.

The women were arrested in connection with the holdup of J. G. Simmons, Toledo salesman.

MISS EARHART ARRIVES OFF WALES PORT

Twenty-four-Hundred-Mile Flight Made in Approximately 20 Hours and 40 Minutes; Town of Llanelly Jubilant as Friendship Is Sighted

GASOLINE SUPPLY DANGEROUSLY LOW

Boston Girl and Her Companions Want to Continue to Southampton; Amelia Refuses to Leave Plane While More Fuel Is Sought

BULLETIN

Llanelly, Carmarthenshire, Wales, June 18—The monoplane Friendship, which descended in Burry Inlet, at 12:40 o'clock, hopped off again at 5:37 o'clock, after being refueled. It was understood that the fliers Miss Amelia Earhart, Pilot Wilmer Stultz and Mechanic Louis Gordon—were bound for Southampton, their original goal.

LLANELLY, Carmarthenshire, Wales, June 18 — Dropping through a driving rainstorm, the transatlantic plane Friendship, which now bears the honor of carrying the first woman on a non-stop flight between America and Europe, came to anchor in Burry Inlet, four miles off this port, just before 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Shortly before the plane drifted down upon the surface of the choppy water it had flown over this town at an altitude of from 200 to 300 feet. Crowds in the street, attracted by the roar of the motor, looked up and saw a graceful red and gold monoplane drifting through the haze with the Stars and Stripes upon it.

"It is the Friendship," was the cry which went up immediately. There was a rush toward the waterside.

Thus ended the historic 2,400 mile flight of the Friendship from Trepassey Bay, N. F., bearing Miss Amelia Earhart, Boston social worker; Pilot Wilmer Stultz and Mechanic Louis Gordon, who had written a new page in the history of American aviation enterprise.

"We Made It"

When the Friendship touched the surface of the water Pilot Stultz taxied towards a buoy to which the plane was made fast.

Police boats and numerous small craft immediately set out for the plane to take off the three fliers.

By using marine glasses the monoplane could be seen on the lifting swell of the water, riding easily and gracefully. There were no distress signals flying.

Owing to the heavy rain and the roughness of the sea the small boats made all possible haste to pick up Miss Earhart and her companions.

"We made it," were the jubilant words of Miss Earhart.

Ask for Gasoline

When the police boats ranged alongside of the Friendship Miss Earhart and her two companions said they did not intend to go ashore. They asked that gasoline be brought to the plane as the fuel supply had run dangerously low. Miss Earhart said they had decided to continue to Southampton as soon as the machine was refueled.

MOTHER, SISTER ARE THANKFUL

Medford, Mass., June 18 — "Wonderful, wonderful, we are very thankful," exclaimed the mother and sister of Miss Amelia Earhart today when they heard the news that the transatlantic airplane Friendship, had spanned the Atlantic.

"I knew she would do it," said Samuel Chapman, fiance of Miss Earhart at his home in Marblehead. Chapman said he would cable his congratulations immediately.

But Stultz later changed his mind and came ashore to try to speed up the search for airplane gasoline.

Attempts Are Made

Immediately upon the return of the boat a wild search was started throughout the town for gasoline suitable for airplane use. Since "aviation gas" is practically unknown here it was not certain whether a supply could be obtained in the Llanelly district.

Meanwhile the Friendship was riding at anchor two miles down the inlet from this town. It had been brought in shore to a point about 200 yards from land. Low tide prevented it from approaching any closer.

As soon as news was received at Southampton this afternoon that the Friendship had landed off Burry Inlet, Wales, an Imperial Airways plane left immediately for that place.

The Friendship averaged better than

FRIENDSHIP "FLEW BLIND" THROUGH FOG; CREW GLAD TO SEE COAST

LLANELLY, Carmarthenshire, Wales, June 18—Beset by fog and bad weather, the transatlantic monoplane Friendship "flew blind" most of the way across from Newfoundland to Wales, Pilot Wilmer Stultz declared here this afternoon.

"No one was ever more thankful than I to see the coast of Wales," said Stultz. "We had a bad trip all the way. In fact, we were flying blind most of the way."

Stultz had his machine under perfect control. After flying over this town the plane passed out over the inlet and flew in the direction of the estuary. The Friendship circled the estuary at slightly decreasing altitude and then dropped lightly upon the surface of the water.

In the belief that the fliers would come ashore a large crowd gathered on the water side to greet them. Soon, however, a boat came back from the Friendship and reported that the American fliers refused to leave their ship."

Townsfolk Disappointed

"They said they would hop off again for Southampton as soon as they obtained a fresh supply of petrol," announced the boatmen.

This news was a big disappointment to the townspeople but they lingered along the waterfront hoping that the fliers would change their minds.

Miss Earhart herself hailed the first motor boat which approached the Friendship.

"We are short of fuel," shouted the woman flier. When the boat drew closer Miss Earhart urgently asked that 50 gallons of "aviation gas" be obtained immediately and that it be brought out to the Friendship.

"We want to get enough to be sure of reaching Southampton," added the aviatrix.

Persons on the motor boat suggested that the crew of the plane go ashore.

"We will wait out here for the gas," replied Stultz and Gordon.

110 miles an hour on the historic flight. The distance between the two places is 2,400 statute miles. The flight was made in approximately 20 hours and 40 minutes.

Vessel Sights Plane

The heavily-loaded plane's high speed in the early part of its journey was accounted for by the fact that it was aided by "allowing winds. Weather experts stated that the Friendship probably ran into an area of storms after

PROUDEST WOMAN, DECLARES AMELIA

Llanelly, Carmarthenshire, Wales, June 18—"I am the proudest woman in the world."

Leaning wearily forward in the cabin of the Friendship, Miss Amelia Earhart made this reply upon to newspaper correspondents who went out in a motor boat this afternoon.

"We made it. We were just fighting against bad weather the greater part of the way over, but we won through. I am very glad to have done it. And I am very happy that we were backed. Our fuel was very low and we could not have gone further. We were a wonderful crew and I am proud to be a member of it. I wish to express my thanks to our

Coolidge's Fishing Reputation Believed Dimmed as He Refuses to Reveal Catch

SUPERIOR, Wis., June 18—The reputation of President Coolidge as a fisherman is considerably dimmed, if circumstantial evidence is to be believed.

The Summer White House is located on that portion of the Brule River running through the estate of the late Henry Clay Pierce. No less than 17 hatcheries were established by Pierce, and the Brule is so well stocked that the trout almost bump each other in their meanderings. It is rumored they sit up and beg for flies, worms, etc.

The President has been fishing on two of the three days he has spent thus far in the north woods. Ordinarily judging from the past two vacations—he is only too proud to display his catch for the benefit of the photographers and let the newspaper reporters know exactly how much the biggest one weighed.

To date, however, the results of this year's efforts have been veiled in the deepest secrecy. Repeated efforts on the part of the newspapermen to ascertain the number of fish caught, if any, have resulted in complete failure. "Reversed," said Edward T. Clark, his personal secretary, evasively; "none," parried Colonel E. W. Starling, the servitorman who fished with the president.

Eagles Drop Hard Fought Fray To Homestead Grays, 6-3

BECKWITH STARS FOR DUSKY NINE

Marion Passes Up Chance To Win Battle in Eighth Inning When Bacon Fans; Two Home Runs in Fifth Features Game

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

COMING out of the west, a dusky horde of colored ball players lodged on the nest of the Marion Eagles just long enough to exact a 6 to 3 victory before continuing on their way.

Giving all the fun and thrills one could want in a semi-pro contest, the Homestead Grays played at Lincoln Park Sunday afternoon before the largest crowd of the season. At the finish of the contest, 1500 fans had passed through the gates to fill every available space in the grandstand and on the bleachers.

Joe Williams, that veteran right-hander who claims to have seen more years go by than old Uncle Tom himself, held the Marion batsmen at his mercy throughout the contest keeping six hits well scattered. It was not until the fifth inning that the locals were able to touch his offerings. Only one man reached first base previous to that frame.

Beckwith Gets Homer

One home run was chalked up by Beckwith, who is known as the Babe Ruth of colored baseball. This came in the fifth inning with bases empty. He also poled out a two bagger in the ninth.

V. Harris socked the first freak homer of the season when he bounced a ball over the left field fence. This circuit clout also came in the fifth frame with bases devoid of dusky runners.

Start Early

Getting their first run in the initial inning, the Grays opened their attack early in the fray. Beckwith accounted for three of the six runs, scoring in the first, third and fourth innings.

Two scores were pushed across in the third frame when V. Harris and Beckwith were sent in by Washington's single to right. Sharrock had plenty of time to make the catch but slowed up with the ball within reach.

Two home runs in the fifth did but little damage and the final score was marked up in the eighth when Dihigo scored on a sacrifice fly.

Conroy crashed out Marion's first hit in the fifth inning when he singled to center. He scored on Buckland's three bagger to left. Buck came in on May's sacrifice fly.

Pass Up Chance

With three men on bases and two down, the Eagles were given a golden opportunity to win the game in the eighth inning. After hitting double between center and right, Mays scored on Rowan's single. On Price's infield drive, Rowan was picked off at second. An error on Graham gave Pine first base while Sharrock walked. Bacon, next up, fanned.

Lefty Wysong, Columbus, hurled for the Eagles. He tossed a nice game allowing 10 hits and striking out eight batters. A like number of Marion batters were fanned by the veteran Williams.

Pine was responsible for three nice plays during the game. In the fourth inning he stopped a threatened scoring rally by starting a double play at second. In the fifth inning he speared a foul back of third base and in the eighth threw out a runner at home after receiving the ball from Price in center.

VANCE LEADING PITCHERS OF BOTH MAJOR LEAGUES

New York, June 18—As the result of his remarkable performance in striking out 15 Chicago batters yesterday, Dazzy Vance today leads the pitchers of both major leagues in that specialty with 77 strike outs for the season.

The Brooklyn mound ace had a chance to tie the modern big league record of 16 for nine innings but Kiki Cuyler, the last batter to face him, hit a grounder. Twice he struck out five consecutive batters. It was his best performance since 1925, when he struck out 17 of the Cardinals in a 10 inning game.

Marion Steam Shovel and the Erie Railroad nines jumped into the lead of the newly organized Industrial Hardball League as a result of opening contests played Saturday afternoon on the Shovel diamonds.

A two run rally in the seventh inning gave the Erie aggregation victory over the Oakland Stars, 9 to 8. Jackman and Herring scored the winning runs from a walk and a hit.

The Oakland team jumped into the lead at the start of the contest getting three runs in the first inning. At the end of the third frame they held a lead of 5 to 3 and in the fourth added two more runs to the score. In the sixth the railroaders went on a hitting spree gathering in three runs before the smoke cleared away.

First Shutout

The Steam Shovel experienced no trouble in shutting out the Pollak Steel aggregation, 12 to 0 in the opening contest. Seven runs in the third inning and five in the fourth, gave the Shovels the victory.

But four hits were allowed the steel gang while the Shovels obtained 12 safe bingles.

Dr. Peltzer Reported Hurt; May Be Minor Opposition For America In Olympics

United States Olympic Team of 1928 Is Potentially 10 Per Cent Stronger Than Squads of 1920 and 1924, Walsh Maintains

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 18—Dr. Otto Peltzer is likely to be only a minor factor in the Olympic games at Amsterdam. Charley Borah probably would be permitted to run in the final tryouts at Boston next month, if he recovered from his illness in the meantime. Paavo Nurmi is in excellent form again and Edwin Wide is a better runner today than he was in the 1924 Olympics. The American Olympic team of 1928 is potentially 10 per cent stronger than the teams of 1920 and 1924 and, unfortunately, so is the foreign opposition.

These were some of the observations today of Lawson Robertson, head coach of the American Olympic team.

Injures Himself

Peltzer, according to information received by Robertson from abroad has injured himself so badly in training that he plans to start in neither the 800 or 1,500-metre races, in both of which he holds the accepted world's records. The doctor it seems, will have less than four weeks training for the international games, when he recovers, and has decided to enter only the 400-metre hurdle race. His projected withdrawal from the middle distances considerably lightens the load under which Lloyd Hahn, who ran 1.52 1-5 to an American 800-metre record on Saturday, will labor at Amsterdam.

Locke Hard Pressed

"Other pertinent observations by the noted trainer were as follows: Roland Locke, judged on his current form, will be hard pressed to make the team. Frank Hussey seems reasonably sure of breaking into the spring qualifications with the Californians and Aubrey Bracely and George Simpson. There is little to choose between the latter pair, although Bracely beat the other twice in the N. C. A. A. spring meets. Chet Bowman, held back by injuries, will not make the team, although he is the current century champion. Jackson Scholz was overtained but is coming back nicely. The defeat of Leo Lermond at 5,000 metres by MacAuley Smith will do the former more good than harm.

"Lermond has been winning his races too easily," Robertson declared. "Now he knows there's more in distance running than mere strength. Smith's time was the best ever made by an American, although there was a track record once credited to man by the name of Hunter. It is believed now that he ran a lap short."

Robertson bases his belief that America will be stronger than at any time since 1912 on the summarization of the prospective ensemble.

LEADERS CONNECT

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig Wallop Homers

NEW YORK, June 18—Although he is in the throes of a batting slump—he hit for little better than .200 on the Yankees' western trip—Babe is five games and three homers ahead of his last year's home run record. His slugging team-mate, Lou Gehrig, is just about keeping pace with his home run swatting during 1927. Ruth got his twenty-fifth homer of the current campaign against the Browns yesterday and Gehrig contributed No. 16.

NEW HATCHERY

Seven Spawning Beds Constructed at Indian Lake

Kenton, June 18—The new Indian Lake fish hatchery, one of the best equipped and most modern in the United States, is now in operation with thousands of fish in its seven pools.

Water from the lakes feeds into the spawning beds through gravity pipeline and drainage in into the Miami river, which runs west from the bulk head. Little expense is thus incurred in transfer of water through the plot according to Al Isaacs, superintendent.

Isaac says only one other hatchery in the United States is equal to the new hatchery here for simplicity and ease of operation.

FAVOR GRISSINGER TO WIN TOURNAMENT AT MARION GOLF COURSE

Semi-Final Matches to Be Played This Week; Pairings Announced

From the showing made Sunday when he defeated H. W. Hane's, 5 to 3 J. J. Grissinger is being favored to win the handicap golf tournament of the Marion Country Club.

Matches run off yesterday sifted down a field of 16 entries to four. These will meet this week and the winners will decide the handicap winner next Sunday.

J. J. Hane was eliminated by H. R. Stoll in the second round, 4-3. Other second round scores are: J. R. Smith beat W. J. Locke, 4-2. Robert Owens won over J. M. Gardner, 3-1.

Three matches were shot off in the first round with H. W. Hane winning over W. H. Symes, one up. H. R. Stoll won 7-6 over C. F. LaMarche while Robert Owens defeated T. R. Allen, one up.

Pairings for the semi-final matches announced for the week will find Stoll meeting Grissinger while Smith will play Owens.

GODFREY, RISKO

To Battle in Heavyweight Bout at Ebbets Field, Wednesday

New York, June 18—The Giant Godfrey—now packing about 230 pounds of fighting weight—encounters Johnny Risko at Ebbets Field on Wednesday evening. These boys have stirred up some interest in their duel by virtue of its bearing on the heavyweight situation.

Just what the heavyweight situation is nobody seems to know—or care. The title fight is not a burning issue, and the "logical contender" angle is even more obscure.

The general public seems to be only mildly concerned over Risko's "white hope" venture. The idea seems to be: "Well, what of it?" If Risko wins and the same if Godfrey triumphs. Neither is going to get a title shot this season.

HORNSBY BACK

Boston, June 18—Rogers Hornsby, his suspension lifted, plays in the doubleheader with the Braves against the Cubs this afternoon. The "Rajah" was suspended as the result of an argument with an umpire.

Stocks Move Through Narrow Price Range; Market Is Lower

RESERVE BANKS BUYING BONDS

Wall Street Passes Through Dull and Featureless Session

Markets at a Glance

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, June 18—In the dullest and most featureless market since the first week in March, and one of the most inactive of the year, industrial stocks moved through a narrow margin of price today, in most cases gravitating to the lower levels. It was the general impression in the financial district that the Reserve Board's campaign for a reduction in speculative borrowings had not been completed and that therefore further liquidation of stock was necessary. Offerings were negligible at the lower price ranges and the market was in a condition or stalemate, for the time being at least.

The outstanding incident of the financial district was the new 26-point rally in Bancitaly Corporation on its stock, reflecting further difficulties among small traders in the stock at the eastern points.

A few of the eastern bank stocks sold off moderately, but fresh weakness in the stock did not loosen a flood of liquidation as it did in the early part of last week.

The reserve banks have resumed buying of government bonds on a small scale which is customary at this time of year and should not be considered as a reversal of their policy with respect to the money market. Though liquidation of weekly-margined stocks was forced out in huge volume last week, stock market experts, after a thorough canvass of the situation, report that the work of liquidation has by no means been completed. Bearish traders are confidently searching for the weak spots today, in an effort to dislodge and garner stop-less orders, always the best source of profit in a declining market.

Stock sales up to the noon period were over 1,040,000 shares, or at the rate of about 1,500,000 shares for the full day, a marked contrast with activities of the past six weeks. The oils and motors staged a moderate rally in the forenoon but encountered heavy offerings of stock on the advance, and thus the path of least resistance for prices was downward.

Twice in the history of the country a Presidential candidate has received a majority of the popular vote and been defeated by the electoral vote. The most famous was the disputed election of 1876 when Samuel J. Tilden received 4284,885 votes and Hayes 4,033,950, ballages was declared elected. In 1888 Cleveland had 5,540,329 popular votes and Harrison 5,439,853, but Harrison was elected by 233 electoral votes to 168.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 18—This week may bring a remarkable readjustment in grain prices generally. When the two grains, rye and oats—which, because of reduced supplies and questionable prospects for the 1928 crops—repeatedly show symptoms of weakness it is difficult to see what source wheat and corn can draw strength from.

On corn particularly, the weather may have a decided effect. The prospect is for considerable higher temperatures before this week is over. According to the forecast of a private weather prognosticator who often is successful, we are about to have a heat wave beginning next Wednesday.

The only complaint that has been heard about the new corn crop is that warm weather would be highly beneficial. A few warm nights would probably lift the corn along with surprising speed.

The new crop which, to most observers (crop expe ts barred) looks particularly promising would in all probability develop bumper potentiality. The effect might be to bring a rush of old corn that, I am told, is still back on the farms, to market.

The market situation in corn does not look to me to be one that should give bulls any persistent confidence. The strength in the July future is based upon the cash situation. But cash corn is selling at no such premiums over the futures as cash oats are maintaining over the futures in the latter grain.

All this means, if it means anything, is that close to a delivery month, the cash situation may not be a sound basis for opinion concerning the speculative situation in futures.

The danger of trying "to bull the tail-end of a short crop," was pointed out here from time to time in regard to the corn market. Now it appears to be approaching a crisis. It may be successful this year, but on the face of the situation at present there is nothing to arouse firm belief in that possibility.

Corn in Weak Position

Corn, although it closed higher on Saturday, did not seem to be really strong at the close. The small upturn may have been due largely to short-covering. What seemed like palpable efforts to bull the July future were apparent in the pit. It did not respond with the strength it ought to have shown if it was really in a bull position.

A big decrease in the visible supply of corn today might stave off a weakening in the futures until later in the week, but if the expected warm weather develops it may be hard to keep prices on the up and up.

The outsider may find trading in July corn dangerous, and deem it wiser to confine his attention to the other futures. The condition in the July makes possible an erratic market at any time, quite irrespective of its ultimate trend.

There appears to be little to buy wheat on at the present time, and that undoubtedly is the reason why buyers are few and far between. The market gives the impression that, in spite of the big decline it has suffered, it is not yet thoroughly liquidated.

Until such liquidation takes place it will be difficult to support prices on less there is some decided backing to the move to stimulate a belief in higher values. It is hard to see how this could be obtained, [illegible] by bullish [illegible]

Too much of the repentance nowadays is done in broadcloth and ashes of roses.

There are enough people with cruel natures that it is easy to make enemies.

Forgive a man who has good reason for saying he has it.

TWO MEN INJURED IN GAS EXPLOSIONS

Third Blast Recorded in Toledo; No One Hurt

Toledo, June 18—Two men are in St. Vincent's hospital here today suffering from burns and bruises sustained in two gas explosions here yesterday. Another explosion was recorded but it is not believed any persons were injured although a blood-stained boy's cap was found near the scene.

The explosions, which rocked houses in widely separated districts of the city, were three in number. One, caused by the lighting of a match in a gas-filled room, seriously burned William J. Swertsalger, 28, of Toledo.

Swertsalger, on his way for a round of golf, stopped at the Cleveland Restaurant here, where he had checked his clubs, procured keys from the proprietor and, unable to locate the clubs in the dimly lighted place, lighted a match. A terrific blast followed, hurling him from the room and inflicting painful burns. He is in St. Vincent's hospital where his condition is said to be serious.

In another explosion, eight sewer manhole covers were hurled into the air amid sheets of flame, accompanied by a deafening roar. Joe Naboiny, Toledo, who was standing near one of the manholes was struck and severely injured when one of the covers flew upward and gashed him about the head. Although a boy's cap and bloodstains were found near another manhole, the cover of which had been ripped loose and catapaulted into the air by the blast, police received no report of additional injured persons and inclined to the belief that no one had been hurt.

A third blast, caused by spontaneous combustion exploding a pocket of gas in an unoccupied dwelling here, wrecked the side of the house and threatened neighboring homes.

Police and fire department officials are checking up on all explosions.

HUDKINS TO BATTLE WALKER THURSDAY

World's Middleweight Crown at Stake in Week's Boxing Feature

Chicago, June 18—Ace Hudkins the celebrated pugilistic wildcat from Nebraska, great as a lightweight and greater as a welter features the week's events in boxing with his effort to lift the middleweight crown from Mickey Walker here next Thursday night. Walker will defend his title against the former welter contender in a 10 round bout the standard distance in Illinois, at Comiskey Park spacious home of the Chicago American League club.

It is the first occasion in his brilliant career in which Hudkins has actually had a titular shot. He came up as a lightweight at a time when the championship of that class was held and guarded most carefully by Jimmy Goodrich and later Rocky Kansas both of whom acquired the title through a rather synthetic, yet official process. They refused to expose it to the Wildcat.

Hudkins grew into the welter class presently, and has been recognized as the foremost challenger in that division for the past two years. He was matched with the titleholder, Joe Dundee, in Los Angeles last fall, the title at stake, but was deprived of the opportunity when the champion, not receiving his full guarantee pulled out of the match, leaving $75,000 worth of customers and Hudkins himself waiting at the post.

12 SHEEP KILLED

Sheep killed by dogs during the past week were valued at $160 in the report filed Saturday afternoon by Dale Rhoades, county dog warden. Five ewes and seven lambs were killed. The sheep were owned by F. D. Isler of Prospect Township.

The county's canine population was decreased by five as a result of the activities of the dog warden during the past week. The dogs were all taken outside the city limits. All were killed.

Approximately one-half the dealers in the county have not obtained their 1928 license.

Cardinals and Yankees Repeating 1926 History

New York, June 18.—It looks like 1926 all over again—the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees in the World Series, sporting an eight-game winning streak and a lead of three games over Cincinnati, the Cardinals have all of their pitchers in shape and are hitting the ball on the nose. The Yankees, although held to an even break in Chicago and St. Louis, increased their lead over the Athletics from seven to eight and a half games during the western trip and are nearly 200 percentage points ahead of their last year's mark at this stage of the race.

The Yanks won nine and lost four in the west. Whether the Mackmen still have another chance to stop them will be determined tomorrow when the two teams clash in a double-header. The A's with six wins in their eight games, are all set for a killing.

Reds Lose

With Lucas and Luque out, Cincinnati's overworked pitching staff has collapsed. The tip-off on the Reds was furnished when they lost three straight to the Phillies. The Phils, all hopped up, have copped five of their last six starts.

The Boston Braves, who spurted for a time under Rogers Hornsby's management, have dropped eight games in a row. Washington has won six out of eight. The other teams in both leagues are barging along at their usual pace.

Warmer weather has resulted in better pitching. Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn strike-out king, whiffed fifteen men and yielded only three hits in whitewashing the Cubs yesterday, 4 to 0. Waite Hoyt hung up his ninth victory in ten starts, holding the Browns to three hits and winning 6 to 2, with the aid of Ruth's 25th homer and Gehrig's 16th.

Senators Win

The third three-hit performance of the day was turned in by Sad Samuel Jones of the Senators. He blanked Detroit 12 to 0, and hit a home run in the bargain. The Nats nicked four Tiger hurlers sixteen hits.

Burleigh Grimes, once a Giant and now a Pirate, also pitched fine ball. He limited New York to five hits and no runs, while the Bucs rolled up six tallies.

The Cardinals scored five runs off Jakie May in the first inning and trimmed the Reds, 6 to 2, in a game curtailed to five innings by rain.

The Athletics captured a ding-dong tilt with Cleveland, 8 to 7, despite a five-run rally by the Indians in the eighth.

EDWIN T. MEREDITH TAKEN BY DEATH

Publisher and Former Cabinet Member Stricken at Home

Des Moines, Ia., June 18—Edwin T. Meredith, local publisher and secretary of agriculture in President Wilson's cabinet, died at his home here at 6 o'clock last night.

Heart disease was ascribed as the cause of his death.

The former cabinet member, who published three farm magazines here, had been ill for about four months. His condition became serious a month ago after he had been returned to his home from Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore, where he had been under observation.

Mr. Meredith established Successful Farming as a monthly periodical. That proved the foundation of the successful Meredith Publications, the name of Mr. Meredith's business, to which eventually were added "Better Homes and Gardens" and "The Dairy Farmer," the three having a combined monthly circulation of more than 2,000,000.

Captain Kelly is said to have reported that his controls jammed, so that he could neither change direction nor gain more elevation. The plane is a U. S. Army model PT-1 biplane from Norton Field here.

While mourning the loss of the money, Mrs. Murphy was handed a letter by the mailman. Opening the envelope she found enclosed $50 in currency carefully wrapped in paper. No signature was attached to the paper and the envelope contained no clew to the sender. Mrs. Murphy stated that she wished to express her thanks to the sender through the Star.

Hoover Begins to Map His Battle Plans For Coming Campaign For Presidency

Good, Work and Brown Will Analyze All Details of Situation With Republican Nominee at Meetings This Week; Board of Strategy Pleased Over McNary

Washington, June 18—Surrounded by the Republican board of strategy, Herbert Hoover today started to map out the battle plans for the campaign.

James W. Good of Iowa, Hoover's convention manager, Secretary of the Interior Work, one of his field marshals, and Walter F. Brown assistant secretary of commerce and Ohio political leader, during the week will analyze all details of the situation and with the Republican nominee determine upon a plan of combat.

The first meeting of Hoover and his general staff since the nomination was a high spirited and optimistic gathering. Hoover's managers expressed confidence of success in November declared that the G. O. P. nominee would not lose the farm belt Republicans and that he had a chance of breaking into the well-near impregnable Democratic strongholds of the solid South.

Elated Over M'Nary

The strategy board was elated over the statement of Senator McNary, Republican of Oregon, co-author of the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill, and asserted that it would go far toward allaying any doubt in the minds of the farmers as to the Hoover policies. They said it was especially gratifying coming a few hours after the attack on Hoover and the Republican platform by Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska who held that the farmers had been betrayed.

Among the points discussed today related to the choice of a national chairman. Both Good and Secretary Work have been suggested, although there seemed to be a leaning toward the former. The chairman will be selected formally by a meeting of the Republican National Committee here Thursday.

Hoover's resignation from the cabinet, the formal notification ceremonies, when he will leave Washington for Palo Alto, Calif., and other details were considered.

Goes To "Meeting"

Hoover spent a quiet Sabbath, receiving a few personal friends and enjoying a reunion which brought all members of his immediate family together for the first time in several months. Allan Hoover arrived from Kansas City early in the day.

With his family Hoover attended services at the modest ivy-covered Friends meeting house on 1st. The entire congregation numbered eighty-six. Characteristic of the Friends there was no demonstration for Secretary Hoover, although the congregation offered its congratulations in a body. The first 15 minutes of the service was a "period of silence."

Years ago at old time Quaker meetings, members of the congregation, over which presided no preacher, remained in silence until some friend was "moved by the spirit," whereupon he would pray or offer an informal sermon. In the orthodox meetings this custom has been abandoned.

COLUMBUS MEN ARE KNIGHTED BY POPE

Recognition Result of Generosity in Aiding St. Charles Seminary

Columbus, June 18—One Columbus man and two Newark men today stood knighted in the Roman Catholic Church following the conferring upon them the noble dignity of Knights of St. Gregory the Great, the first honors ever given to any Catholic laymen in the Diocese of Columbus, which comprises central and most of eastern Ohio.

Bishop James J. Hartley, personal legate of Pope Pius, XI, vested the men with the signia of knighthood in the chapel at St. Charles Seminary, a college for the training of young men for the Catholic priesthood here.

Another Columbus man, who is at present confined in a hospital here, will receive the order of knighthood in a few days, it was said.

The men received the sword and gold cross of St. Gregory in recognition of the constant and generous aid they have given to St. Charles Seminary, Bishop Hartley said.

The men knighted were Richard G. Berry, prominent business man here, William A. Wehrle and A. T. Wehrle, owners of the Werhle Stove Co. of Newark. The man to be vested with the honor in the next few days is Bernard Smith, another business man here.

HEFLIN GUARDED AS HE ATTACKS SMITH

Governor Places Troops About Attacking Senator at Albany Gathering

Albany, June 18 — The biggest gathering of the Ku Klux Klan ever held in Albany County listened yesterday to United States Senator Thomas J. Heflin of Alabama continue his attacks on Governor Smith and Roman Catholicism almost within sight of the towers of the state capitol.

It was a colorful crowd of 10,000 that gathered in a natural amphitheatre just southwest of the Albany city line to hear the traditional enemy of New York's governor assail him as a Democratic presidential candidate possibility. Pointed hoods and flowing robes of the Klansmen and women of the Kamelia, the women's organization, vied with odd uniforms of "Pioneers," "Rangers" and various drill groups and the more familiar gray of the state troopers, out in force by direct orders of Governor Smith to see that Senator Heflin was not heckled or interfered with.

The troupers were under the personal command of Maj. John A. Warner, the governor's son-in-law, who shook hands with Senator Heflin when he arrived on the scene for a two-hour address.

The senator predicted that the Catholic Democrats might have a surprise in store for them at the Houston convention, even though the nomination of Governor Smith for the presidency is freely prophesied now.

MAN UNINJURED AS TRAIN HITS MACHINE

Escapes Serious Injury at Prospect-st Crossing This Morning

A Cleveland man, whose name was not learned, experienced a narrow escape from serious injury if not death early this morning when his machine was sideswiped by a west bound Big Four passenger train at the Prospect-st crossing.

He was driving south on Prospect-st about five o'clock and had reached the railroad crossing before he noticed the approaching passenger train, he turned his car west to avoid being struck by the train but not soon enough to prevent sideswiping the engine. The right front wheel of the car was broken and the fender damaged. The car was taken to the Albert Bros. garage for repairs and he later continued on his journey.

TWO ARE SERIOUSLY HURT IN ACCIDENT

Machines Demolished in Collision on Harding Highway

(Special to The Star)

Kenton, June 18—Mrs. L. Bly and daughters, Miss Ferne Bly, of Roundhead are in McKittrick Hospital, here, suffering from severe cuts and bruises sustained in an automobile collision yesterday morning at the intersection of Harding Highway and the LaRue-Huntsville road, about 12 miles east of here. Another daughter, Mrs. Ruth Greer and daughter, Betty, 18 months old, also sustained injuries which necessitated their being taken to the hospital from where they were released last night. Both machines were wrecked.

Occupants of the other car, who also sustained cuts and bruises, were picked up by another car and removed from scene of the accident before witnesses could obtain their names.

Mrs. Bly and her daughters and granddaughter were enroute to Manefield to visit relatives and were traveling east on the highway. Their car went into the ditch where it overturned. The other car, which bore a Delaware county license, was traveling on the Lincoln-Marseilles-pk.

30 KILLED

Fighting Is Reported in Salonika After Strike

Berlin, June 18—Thirty persons are reported to have been killed in street fighting in Salonika as the result of an attempted communist uprising, said advices from Belgrade this afternoon.

The fighting spread to Piraeus, the port of Athens, where the rioters erected barricades in the streets. The troubles are an outgrowth of the recent strike of tobacco workers.

Four-Year-Old Boy Dies from Pistol Bullet Wound

Toledo, June 18—Little four-year-old Patrick Eugene Myers is dead here today—the victim of the fascination which a .38 calibre pistol held for him.

A visitor at his grandmother's home here over the week end, the lad arose at 6 o'clock yesterday morning while the other members of the household were asleep and searched a dresser until he had found the pistol.

Verne Wannamaker, 25, sleeping in an upstairs room, was awakened by the loud report of a pistol. Leaping from the bed, he found the wounded child who had been shot through the eye, the bullet penetrating the head.

Rural Doctors Fast Disappearing in Marion County, But Situation is Not Acute, Commissioner Believes

THE problem of replacing the fast disappearing rural doctor which is bothering many communities, is apparently not acute in Marion County according to Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner.

While there has been a decrease in the number of physicians in the rural communities of Marion County during the past decade, the decrease has been small, Dr. Sifritt states. Ten years ago there were about 15 physicians located in Marion County outside the borders of Marion.

At present there are 12 physicians in the rural sections of the county. This is one physician for every 1,000 persons which is approximately the same ratio that exists between the number of physicians and prospective patients in Marion.

Ratio Same

While the number of physicians has decreased in the rural sections of the county there has also been a decrease in the population of the same regions, according to records in the office of Dr. Sifritt. The ratio between physicians and population remains approximately the same.

A shortage of country doctors, which farm leaders say threatens a general breakdown in rural health service was to be one of the topics discussed at a meeting of the merican Medical Association scheduled to be held in Minneapolis this month.

Since only a small proportion of the medical students graduated in the past 10 years have located in rural sections it is said that the present generation of country doctors will have disappeared within the next decade. The average of rural doctors in 1925 was 52. Since the average age at death of the American physician is 62 it is pointed out that within 10 years those physicians now located in the country will have disappeared.

Grange Aides

In 1906 there were 33,000 physicians in communities of 1,000 population or less in the United States. A survey made in 1924 shows this number reduced to 27,000. More recent investigation shows that almost one-third of the towns of 1,000 or less which had physicians in 1914 had none in 1925.

The problem of maintaining the supply of country doctors whose outlay in time and money in securing their education will be such that their services will be within reach of the rank and file of the people has been undertaken by the National Grange.

Marion County's rural physicians are distributed as follows: Prospect, three; Waldo, two; Caledonia, two; LaRue, two; and one each for Morral, Meeker and Martel.

Father Von Kaenal Sings First Solemn High Mass Among Relatives, Friends

St. Mary's Catholic Church Scene of Ceremony For Young Priest; Altar Beautifully Decorated for Occasion; Cincinnati Pastor Gives Sermon

"Kings may sit in royal vestures of purple, city and nation may bow at his will, but he whom the Lord God doth magnify, he upon whom the dignity of God's priesthood is bestowed he indeed has received the greatest and the highest dignity that is given to the sons of mortal men to know," declared Rev. Father Leo Walsh, pastor of Holy Trinity Church, Cincinnati, in his sermon at the solemn high mass at which Rev. Father Robert J. Von Kaenal was the celebrant at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

This was the first solmen high mass to be celebrated by Reverend Father Von Kaenal, who recently was ordained at Cincinnati, and the church auditorium was taxed to capacity with relatives and friends of the celebrant. The altars were beautifully decorated with baskets of summer flowers. Following the mass Reverend Von Kaenal bestowed his blessing individually upon members of the congregation.

Entertained at Harding

At the close of the mass Mr. and Mrs. John Von Kaenal, E. Center-st, parents of the celebrant, entertained 150 relatives and visiting priests and seminarians at dinner at Hotel Harding and yesterday afternoon and evening held a reception in his honor at the home, 540 E. Center-st.

Assisting at the mass were Dr. Dean McFarland, also of this city, an instructor in St. Gregory Seminary, Cincinnati, who presided as deacon; Harry Von Kaenal, brother of the celebrant, who is a student at St. Mary Seminary, as sub deacon.

B. Kennedy, Cleveland, served as master of ceremonies; Stephen Driscoll, thurifer; Carl Willacher, Bucyrus, and Frank Byrne, Detroit, acolytes; Joseph Von Kaenal, brother of Rev. Father Von Kaenal, cross bearer; Philip Finnigan, Jack Schuler, Harold Hirniese, Dick Hirniese, Dick Amann, Robert Rintz, Joseph Kelleher and Paul Ryan, torch bearers. Music for the mass was furnished by a special choir made up of seminarians from St. Mary, which included Urban Wimmers, director and organist; Rev. Mr. August Kramer, Rev. Mr. Carl Hawn, Rev. Mr. Edward Miller, Sylvester Smeltzer, Joseph Mattone, William Bein, Joseph Dauwe and Vincent Labbi. An orchestra composed of seminarians also furnished music for the banquet.

Christ's Commission

"The Lamb of God could have come down from Heaven, could have labored and toiled, suffered and died, but all would have been in vain and unknown to us were it not that before He ascended to His Eternal Father, our Divine Savior, assembling His beloved apostles about Him, gave to them that commission, 'going therefore, teach ye all nations.' Even this commission would have meant but little did He not add the assurance, 'and behold I am with you all days, even to the consummation of the world.'

"And how our very hearts should dilate with joy this day, as in echo to that distant command, we behold before our very eyes the enactment, the fulfillment of those words. What transports of joy fill our hearts as we behold this young man, who having answered the call of the Master bows down in humble acknowledgement of his own unworthiness and, imploring the mercy and benediction of God, ascends for the first time to offer up solemn sacrifice, the spotless Lamb of God.

"The world knows nothing more wonderful than a mother's love yet a mother's love, a mother's sacrifice can never receive greater compensation than when God sees fit to choose her offspring to serve Him at the altar. This is God's blessing to her today.

"Let us all rejoice this day; let us pour forth from our hearts a fervent prayer to the great and merciful God that fruitful may be his ministry in the vineyard of the Lord. That unfaltering may he serve his Master and when the great day of reckoning comes, may he bless the day upon which those solemn words were spoken, 'thou art a priest forever.'" passing the mid-Atlantic, but they said weather conditions off the coast of Ireland were good.

GIRL LINDY SPANS ATLANTIC IN PLANE

The sighting of the Friendship by the vessel America was confirmed by the United States Shipping Board shortly after the report was received.

According to the America's message, the plane was sighted at 10:30 G. M. TGM. (6:30 a. m. New York daylight time). When it sighted the ship, the America was enroute from Cherbourg to Queenstown and was due to dock at the latter port at 1:45 p. m.

The captain of the America radioed that the plane circled over the ship several times before proceeding in a northerly direction.

Miss Earhart attempted to drop notes from the plane but the wind prevented them from reaching the deck.

The Friendship took off from Trepassey Harbor at 12:51 p. m. Atlantic time (10:51 a. m. New York daylight time) yesterday after five unsuccessful attempts.

There were more than 700 gallons of fuel aboard when the plane finally took off. There were 425 gallons aboard before the unsuccessful attempt but later each one various amounts were dumped overboard to lighten the plane.

"I came ashore to see about gas. We have not got enough left in the tank to make a hop off," said Stultz on arriving at Llanelly.

"It was not a pleasant trip but everything went perfectly. I had to steer according to our instruments and luckily they did not go wrong.

"As soon as we can fill up the fuel tank we are going on to Southampton to finish up the trip. We are all in splendid spirits despite our fatigue. Naturally Miss Earhart is proud to think she is the first woman to have flown over the Atlantic.

EX-SENATOR DIES

Barnesville, June 18—David C. Kennon, 85, state civil engineer appointed by William McKinley when governor of Ohio, is dead here today following a short illness. Kennon was also state senator at one time. He was prominent in Democratic party politics. The office of State Civil Engineer has since been incorporated under the office of State Director of Public Works.

didate the Republicans could have named," he asserted. "Why any regular Republican should feel impelled to vote for him I cannot see.

"Had Senator Curtis been nominated he could have polled the normal Republican vote, but Hoover cannot, in my opinion."

Farmers' Not Fools

The placing of the Kansas senator on the ticket after Hoover's nomination was described by Senator Reed as "A futile gesture that will not fool the middle west."

"The claim that Senator Curtis' nomination will appease the discontent in the middle west, and that Senator Curtis will do something for the farmer, is perfect nonsense. The agriculturalists of the west are not fools. They know that as the leader of his party in the Senate, Senator Curtis exercised a thousand times more influence and power on legislation than he ever could while pigeon-holed in the vice president's chair. What can he do? Nothing—and the farmers know it. They're not the fools that certain corporate-minded gentlemen in the east think."

Will Attack Vare

The Missouri Senator indicated that the Democrats are going to make much of the part which Senator-designate William S. Vare of Pennsylvania played in Hoover's nomination. Vare has thus far been denied his seat in the Senate.

"Herbert Hoover," said Reed, "was nominated by and with the approval of 'Bill' Vare, who stands convicted before the bar of American public opinion of a corrupt use of money in the primary campaign in Pennsylvania. Hoover has been nominated by the man who has been denied a seat in the Senate because of the Senator Norris, of Nebraska, is metaphorically tearing his hair over the Kansas City platform. But then, George has hardly been himself since that Washington jury refused to let him and a couple of senatorial inquisitors put Colonel Stewart behind the bars.

A very pleasing phase of the campaign, in the very probable event of the nomination of the New York governor, is this: Both Hoover and Smith are gentlemen, and it will not be marked by blackguardism.

An exchange says it can't understand why newspapers so generally spell vilify as they do. Possibly because they do not know that there isn't any such word as vilify.

The mayor and eight officials of the Mexican town of Huatla were shot to death by a firing squad on a forged order, purporting to have been signed by the Mexican war department and President Calles, transmitted by wire and confirmed by mail. Life in a land in which government agencies connive at murder can hardly appeal to a civilized world as ideal.

It may be coming back in dribs, but let's be thankful. Better a fraction of a loaf than no bread at all!

Another Front Porch Campaign.

The front porch campaign is coming back into its own. Herbert Hoover will wage the same sort of a campaign that was conducted by Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley, and, to a very large extent, Warren G. Harding.

Mr. Hoover's campaign will be no ballyhoo affair. His leaders and spokesmen say he will do no trailing around the country, and no speaking from the rear platforms of Pullman cars.

Apparently it is settled right now the kind of a campaign Mr. Hoover will carry on. He will make one transcontinental tour before his campaign really gets under way. That will be when he goes from Washington to his home at Palo Alto, California, where he will be formally notified that he is the Republican nominee.

The notification ceremony will be in the nature of a homecoming for Mr. Hoover. His speech of acceptance will be his first important utterance as a presidential nominee, who, by all portents, will follow Mr. Coolidge into the White House. Those who know Mr. Hoover do not believe that his speech will be strongly tinged with partisanship, despite the unfading color of his Republicanism.

Just where the "front porch" of Mr. Hoover's campaign will be located is a matter of more than passing interest—and importance. It will not be at his home in California, because that is so far from eastern, and even midwestern, centers of population as to make pilgrimages difficult and expensive.

There is some talk now that he will establish headquarters in a centrally-located state, and will receive there the delegations which will come to visit him. And again, there is talk that his home on S street, Washington, may be his campaign headquarters. This is a problem, because the largest number of people possible must be given a chance to become better acquainted with the nominee.

It is recalled that Benjamin Harrison conducted the kind of a campaign which called for establishing headquarters at a point where the people could reach him. He met them in University park, Indianapolis, where a stand was erected for purpose of speech-making.

While Mr. Hoover is engaged in the modernized "front porch" campaign, the vice-presidential nominee will be sent hither and yon about the country. The radio, likewise, will be used extensively—more extensively than ever, in fact—and all of Mr. Hoover's "front porch" talks will be broadcasted over a nation-wide hook-up.

Not a Makeshift.

Study of the platform ratified by the Republican convention shows that it contains a varied assortment of planks, but that each harmonizes with traditional Republican ideals—that the mortising discloses the master touch of the artisan—and that the completed structure is one upon which Herbert Hoover may campaign secure in the knowledge that he need not apologize for the principles espoused by the party.

There is no beating about the bush in the Republican platform. In unequivocal language it bespeaks law observance and law enforcement, honesty in government, economy in campaign expenditures and a continuance of the high standard of public economy set by President Coolidge.

From beginning to end, the Republican platform is one of the soundest ever placed before the electorate by any political party. There is nothing of a carping nature in the platform, but it is predicated on the thought that the welfare of the entire people is inseparably linked with a continuance of Republican control of the government.

The sympathetic appeal in the platform of 1928, as the casual observer may view it, lies not in a plea for support, but in the straightforward appeal of the declaration as a whole, couched as it is in unmistakable language easily understood by every person who takes the time to read it.

During President Coolidge's tenure of office it devolved upon him twice to veto the McNary-Haugen bill, which was supposed to be a panacea for the ills of agriculture. As a result, those gentlemen who evidently believed themselves the appointed to carry on a fight for government subsidies as a makeshift method of alleviating whatever ailment besets the farmer, went into the Republican convention determined to win their argument or wreck the show.

That they lost completely in their effort goes without saying. But the Republican party did not ignore the farmer. Instead of permitting itself to be stampeded into promising anything of a superficial nature for the farmer, the platform builders wrote into the party's bill of declarations a vigorous decision to work unceasingly for farm relief—but farm relief without a government subsidy.

The language of the farm aid plank is as follows:

"The agricultural problem is national in scope and as such is recognized by the Republican party, which pledges its strength and energy to the solution of the same.

"Realizing that many farmers are facing problems more difficul' than those which are the portion of many other basic industries, the party is anxious to aid in every way possible.

"The Republican party promises every assistance in the reorganization of the marketing system on sounder and more economical lines, and, where diversification is needed, government financial assistance during the period of transition."

In other words, the Republican party pledges itself to assist those farmers whose farms need diversification, but not through any scheme which contemplates a national subsidy which will make it possible for the unskilled farmer to live on public money while his more scientific neighbors and his more skilled contemporaries earn their livelihood by the sweat of their brows.

The prohibition plank in the platform is brief—yet it is decisive. It reads: "Observance and vigorous enforcement of the eighteenth amendment." That is all the platform need say about law enforcement—or wet and dry. The Republican party always has stood four-square behind law enforcement.

One feels certain, after a careful perusal of the 1928 platform, that it is probably the soundest upon which the party has ever gone before the electorate, and that it merits the indorsement of the men and women of the nation. In fact, it may be said it be-Hoovers the electorate to indorse this platform, if continued prosperity is to be enjoyed.

Summer Sacrifices.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

We are approaching the time of the year when the babies require watchful care. The summer time—from the first warm days till the cool nights of fall appear—is a trying time for Sir Infant. The heat is felt by babies even more than it is by grown-ups.

Did you ever think that a baby is influenced a lot by the temper of his mother? If the mother suffers from the effects of heat, if she is kept awake by the stifling, airless blanket of a blistering summer night, naturally she suffers in temper. Unless it is of the unfailing variety, her good nature cracks under the strain of this trying circumstance.

So, you see, the baby must endure his own suffering from the heat and, in addition, must endure the irritation of his mother's fretfulness. Babies are just as sensative, certainly, as horses. A horse will sense and react to the temper and disposition of the driver.

A great many years ago I was driving a spirited young horse. In an hour's time, in spite of the fact that we were not making any remarkable speed, my horse was in a lather of foam. My calm and self-controlled father was with me. He said quietly: "You are tired, let me take the reins." Within a half hour my horse was dry, the lather had disappeared, and we were just jogging along at a better pace than when I held the reins.

The horse knew instinctively there had been a change of leadership and he conformed to the spirit of the new management. Certainly babies know as much as horses. If the mother is tired and irritable, she passes on to the child the same spirit.

We need not stop with the relationship between the mother and infant. An irritable father will upset the whole household. A fretful young woman brings home from her work an atmosphere of irritation and discontent. A cross boy will upset a whole household.

Thus you see the heat of summer is exasperating and trying to all the members of the family. But, with the exception of the baby, it won't cause any lasting harm. The baby must be watched and protected. His health must be guarded with more than ordinary care during the hot days and nights. The first summer is the most trying season of the entire lifetime of this individual.

Dear mother, you are the one always called upon to make sacrifices, but the sacrifices of this Summer will mean everything to the young life given to you to guard. What happens to your child this summer is the foundation upon which his future will be built. If he has the right start, he will grow into youth and maturity, strong and vigorous, ready for the battle of life. Your sacrifices are well worth while.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

S. M. B. Q.—I am forty-seven years of age and suffering from mucus colitis ever since I can remember. Gases on stomach when the latter is empty, bad taste, poor elimination, gurgling sounds in the bowels, but never throw up food, cracked and raw tongue and at times coated. What would you advise? My doctor says nothing about dieting.

A.—Your diet should be of first consideration. All coarse foods should be eliminated, you should drink water between meals and be sure to keep the intestinal tract clear. Acidity would cause most of the symptoms you describe. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Editorial Opinion.

HERBERT CLARK HOOVER.

It is a circumstance which invites new confidence in democratic government when a great party turns to a man like Herbert C. Hoover and makes him its nominee for president. Whether he is elected or defeated in November, Hoover brings character and promise to the Republican ticket. He is a new kind of candidate in a day surfeited with old forms and old habits in politics.

The major parties have commonly turned to one of two sources for their presidential nominees. They have named either a man who has shown ability as a vote-getter and a capacity for executive management; or have picked a military hero, whose lack of experience is hidden by the glamour of his name.

Secretary Hoover has never run for an elective office. He probably never donned a military uniform. As a vote-winner he is utterly an unknown. Of the three state primaries he entered in competition with favorite sons, he lost two. So far as his ability to win popular support at the polls is concerned, the Republican party accepts Hoover on faith.

Underlying this sublime faith in a man's ability to deliver, however, is a long record of astonishing achievement. Hoover typifies efficiency. He thinks in terms of getting things done. To him government is an engineering problem, and like a master chess player he maneuvers his forces to the desired end.

As food commissioner in the Great war, as head of America's relief forces in Europe after the armistice, as director of salvage in the stricken Mississippi River region, and on a score of like missions stretching through a busy life, Herbert Hoover has borne unusual responsibilities with unusual success. "Let Hoover do it" has become both a slogan and a compliment in administrative circles at Washington.

When Harding invited Mr. Hoover to his cabinet the selection was everywhere hailed with enthusiasm. His retention by Mr. Coolidge was taken for granted. Rumors of cabinet changes never involved the head of the commerce department; his tenure was accepted as indefinite. He has raised a cabinet office to new usefulness.

The election of Hoover would bring to the presidency one whose horizon of sympathy and understanding is worldwide. There is nothing provincial about him; he comprehends Europe as well as America, and understands the many relations that bind them together. The Old world, which is commonly much puzzled at politics and political methods in this country, will have no difficulty understanding why a great party chooses Hoover for its leader.

It is much to Mr. Hoover's credit, though opponents have pointed to it sneeringly, that his party affiliations have been questioned. It indicates that Hoover is first a highly-competent American, and only secondarily a partisan. Now that he has been chosen to carry out the policies of Calvin Coolidge, the average voter of independent leanings will believe him as incapable of narrow partisanship in the performance as he has shown himself incapable of littleness in the manifold activities of a busy life. —Cleveland Plain Dealer, Independent Democratic.

ONLY ONE MUSSOLINI.

Another of Il Duce's precautionary measures has been the warning to Italian mothers that their sons are not to be named "Mussolini." Even "Benito" is presumably banned as a moniker for scions of patriotic Italian families.

There is only one Mussolini, says he, and there can be only one. In the United States we have no such obstacle to maternal hope and juvenile pride. The given names of our heroes and statesmen are public property. If the name of a great man is to be any inspiration to some lad of obscure family, there is no law, written or unwritten, against letting him have it. So we trace the history of our country and its enthusiasms in the names of its rank and file. Many a youngster born toward the close of the Civil war was christened "George B. McClellan" Smith or Jones. In the late nineties there was a crop of "Deweys." There have been "Theodores" and "Warrens," "Woodrows" and "Wilsons" to mark the flight of time and the popular fancy.

After all, and Shakespeare to the contrary notwithstanding, if there is anything in a name, there should be no harm in passing it on to coming generations. Whatever his own opinion of himself, Mussolini could have no truer, sweeter tribute from the people he now controls than that the mothers of the nation should wish to name their sons with his name, in his honor.—Detroit Free Press.

Health and Heat.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Comfort is the keynote of modern life. Science has the credit of furnishing most of the extra comforts that we enjoy as compared with our fathers. Science has also extended the average period of human life, but I doubt if that application of science which has given us our system of "central heating" is to be counted among those that have contributed to the general health of the community. It might if it were not so universally and outrageously abused.

There are some of us who remember, with reminiscent shivers, the old days when country houses, at least, had no fires except in the kitchen and in polished sheet-iron stoves, with glowing isinglass eyes, that stood in the parlor and in a few other favored rooms. Then there were, of course, the old-fashioned open fireplaces, around which, with their blazing birch logs, the gods of Olympus might have sat rejoicing. But the hallways were cold and the passage from bed-room to breakfast-room was a polar voyage.

But those were also the days of feather beds and thick down coverlets, the most delightful abodes of sleep that ever existed on this planet. One seemed to accumulate during the night an extra store of the most agreeable bodily temperature, which served to meet and overcome, at the cost of a few preliminary shivers, the glacial air of the morning. To jump out of one of those genial beds was like taking a morning plunge in snow-cold water, and its invigorating effects lasted all the day.

Now one often sleeps in an atmosphere heavy with heat, the body and brain become torpid and languid, sleep lacks continuity and the perfect repose that a lower external temperature would promote, and rising in the morning is an anaconda-like proceeding, a slow, lazy unfolding of the half-dazed faculties of mind and body. I do not believe that warm bedrooms are "good for the health." What the body requires during sleep is protection against loss of its own internal heat, not an unneeded, external supply from a steam-heated or hot-water-heated atmosphere. Keeping a window open does not balance the account. The extra heat that it lets out ought not to have been let in to begin with. A rosy nose buried in a deep, downy pillow on a cold morning is a flower of health.

And during the daytime we have the same story. Apartment-houses, offices and other places of business are universally kept too warm in winter, spring and autumn. Europeans in general are much more sensible than we are in these matters. Except where our system of over-heating has been applied to content home-boiled American visitors you find the rooms far more reasonably and healthfully heated than with us. Of course the sick and persons in very delicate health need a supply of external heat, such as is, or should be, oppressive to others; but such cases can be specially dealt with and they furnish no reason for inflicting hospital conditions upon those who are in vigorous health.

The proper relation of man to temperature is plainly indicated by the simple fact that all the great civilizations have arisen and flourished in the temperate zones, where winter and summer alternate, where the temperature of successive days undergoes large variations, and where all the bodily functions are kept awake and active by the stimulus of changing atmospheric conditions. The body needs to be thrown back periodically upon its internal resources in order to keep those resources fresh and ready for immediate response.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICES HELD

Mt. Gilead, Galion Churches Observe Annual Custom in Sunday Programs

Mt. Gilead, June 16—A Children's Day program was observed during the night service of the Presbyterian Church services yesterday. The observance of Father's Day was omitted in the services except in the M. E. Sunday School hour when G. L. Glauner, who returned from his studies in West Virginia Wesleyan College gave a very appropriate talk on Father's Day exalting "Dad."

The M. E. Epworth League had charge of the services last night in the M. E. Church and presented two pageants during the program in addition to several musical numbers. "Where Will I Hang My Sign" was the first pageant dealing with medical missionary work in foreign countries and "The Only Day I Have," was the second. This pageant deals with the problem of Sabbath observance in Sunday School, over the Sunday excursions and other forms of entertainment.

In the Sunday morning services of June 24 in the M. E. Church Dr. F. C. Anderson, Supt. of the Mansfield District will occupy the M. E. pulpit. In the afternoon a rally of the county M. E. Churches will be held in the local church and a good representation is expected. An instructor in the school of theology of the N. E. Ohio Conference will be present and deliver the address of the afternoon.

The M. E. official board met yesterday morning and granted the pastor, Rev. J. C. Smith a three weeks' vacation to be taken at his convenience.

"Loyalty to Jesus" was the topic chosen by Rev. J. C. Smith of the M. E. Church for his morning sermon.

"A Cure for Worry" was selected for the morning hour in the Baptist Church by Rev. D. E. Miller, pastor.

"What Was the Source of Christ's Enthusiasm" was discussed in the morning service of the Universalist Church by Rev. Sara L. Stoner, pastor. Her night service topic was "The Vitalizing Power of Religion."

Special Music Service Presented by Methodist Church Choir

Galion, June 16—Children's Day programs were featured at three churches of the city. The event was celebrated yesterday morning at First Lutheran Church and a large number of children of the various departments of the Sunday School were heard in songs and readings. One of the features of the program was the pageant "The Spirit of the Church" which closed the service.

The children's programs at First Baptist Church and also at the First Presbyterian Church were held last night and were enjoyed by large audiences.

A series of sermons which have been of unusual interest to congregation members of Peace Lutheran Church "The Fine Art of Living Together" was brought to a close last night when the pastor, Rev. Philip Auer gave the last sermon of the group "Growing Old Together."

"The Christian Fellowship" and "The Voice of Jesus" were the topics used by Rev. George F. Zinn, fo rhis sermons at First Reformed Church yesterday. The choir gave special music at the morning service and last night Miss Norma Durtchi was heard in a solo number.

A special musical service was presented at the First Methodist Church last night by members of the large vested choir under the direction of Mrs. Jud V. Dye with Miss Edna Tracht as organist and Miss Kathryn Peebles pianist. For prelude Miss Tracht used two especially appropriate numbers "Andantino in E Flat" and "Choir Militaire." The male quartet composed of Fred Kiddey, J. C. Peebles, C. D. Fuller and Lowell Ness sang "The Name of Jesus" by Adams and a mixed quartet used Shelley's "The King of Love.' A Kreisler composition "The Old Refrain" was played by Charles Line, violinist, and an anthem by the entire choir with piano and organ accompaniment. "Lead Kindly Light" by Evans closed the affair. At the morning service at the church the pastor, Rev. S. A. Stephan used as his sermon topic "Jesus' Moral Transcedence."

Rev. Warren Lincoln Rogers, D. D., Cleveland, who is bishop coadjutor of the diocese of Ohio officiated at a communion service held yesterday morning at Grace Episcopal Church. Dean Rogers who was formerly of St. Paul's Cathedarl in Detroit was one of the first ministers to broadcast sermons and has been called "the Radio Bishop." Following the communion service Dean Rogers preached an interesting sermon and immediately following left for Gambier where he delivered the baccalaureate sermon for the senior class of Kenyon college, last night.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Crop Conditions Reported Good in Hardin County

Kenton, June 16—Prospects for an excellent onion crop on the Scioto and Hog Creek marshes despite serious blows earlier in the season, are bright according to reports from the two districts today.

Danger from high winds is seemingly past and no reports of onions being "baked" by the sun following the recent heavy rains were recorded. Many onion patches have entered on their second weeding this season.

At the outset of the planting season several seedings of onions were blown from the ground, necessitating replanting as high as five different times.

Potatoes, increasing in importance in this section of Ohio, are doing well.

Corn growers over the county are pleased with the early showing of the crop. Some fields are undergoing their first cultivation.

During the past week corn has had ideal growing conditions, with the warm hot days and the cool nights. Heavy morning dews have also aided in advancing the new crop.

GALION CHURCH IS SCENE OF WEDDING

Miss Olive Thuma and James Gill Wed in Presence of Friends

Galion, June 16—Miss Olive Thuma, daughter of Mrs. Harriet Thuma, Harding Way E. and James Gill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bloomer Gill, Gill-av, were united in marriage at a lovely church ceremony at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The auditorium of the First United Brethren Church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, pink and white peonies and ferns being used for the altar decoration. Miss Harriet Waterman, organist, played MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose" as a prelude. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played as the bridal party entered and Mendelssohn's wedding march was used at the close.

Mrs. Earl Stutz, of Mansfield, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor and William Reynolds, of Galion, was best man. Rev. W. O. Montague read the single ring service in the presence of a large group of friends of the couple. Immediately following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of Mrs. Thuma, Harding Way E. and shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Gill left by motor for a wedding trip in the east.

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

"Doubling" for Wife

SOME day we are going to discover that being a wife is not a picnic or an avocation, but a great profession. A profession requiring skill, science, hard application and natural ability.

• • •

Some day there is going to be a brand new and profitable business for women in the job of "substitute wife."

• • •

Many an overworked Tired Business Woman would be delighted today if she could find a reliable substitute to "double" for her in the role of wife.

• • •

Somebody to do all those things which the Tired Business Wife ought to do, wants to do—and never finds TIME to do!

• • •

You can hire a housekeeper to feed your husband and take care of his clothes; but what the busy wife would like to find is somebody to watch his diet, see that he takes his tonic and set his alarm clock.

• • •

Somebody to remind him to write to his mother, put the studs in his shirt, wipe his razor and tell him when to get his hair cut.

• • •

Somebody to meet him at the station when she is detained at the office, and greet him at the door with a bright, glad smile and a cry of joy when he comes in evenings.

• • •

Somebody to find his slippers, fetch his smoking coat and see that he changes his wet socks when he comes in after a rainy day—while his wife is cramming her face or getting into her evening gown.

• • •

Somebody to wait up for him when he stays out late nights and listen to his alibis when he returns—while his wife gets a full night's sleep.

• • •

Somebody to go around to musical shows and revues and prizefights with him—while his wife goes to see a GOOD play or gets in some improving reading.

• • •

Somebody to jolly and coax him into a good humor when he comes in with a grouch, on the particular day when his wife has a headache.

• • •

Somebody to listen raptly while he talks about his golf, explains his latest masterstroke or tells "the new one he heard at the club."

• • •

Somebody to liven up the dinner conversation, fix his salad and pour his coffee—when his wife is out at a committee meeting or "sit in" after a hard day's work.

• • •

Somebody to listen sympathetically while he tells of his troubles at the office, keep an eye on him at parties to see that he doesn't imbibe too much, and keep him out of draughts at all times.

• • •

Somebody to coddle him, amuse him, worry about him, wait on him, jolly him, restrain him and bully him—somebody, in short, to do EVERYTHING that a strong man needs except inspire him and LOVE him!

• • •

This is the next profession which women will probably take up. Because being a wife is a WHOLE TIME job—and the Tired Business Woman will have to find somebody to be a wife to her neglected husband!

THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XO

"I dare say," observed Summerhaye sarcastically.

Japp was regarding Poirot with comical perplexity.

"Can't you go a little further, Mr. Poirot. A wink's as good as a nod—from you. You've been on the spot—and the yard doesn't want to make any mistakes, you know."

Poirot nodded gravely.

"That is exactly what I thought. Well, I will tell you this. Use your warrant: Arrest Mr. Inglethorp. But it will bring you no kudos—the case against him will be dismissed at once! Comme ca!" And he snapped his fingers expressively.

Japp's face grew grave, though Summerhaye gave an incredulous snort.

As for me, I was literally dumb with astonishment. I could only conclude that Poirot was mad.

Japp had taken out a handkerchief, and was gently dabbing his brow.

"I daren't do it, Mr. Poirot. I'd take your word, but there's others over me who'll be asking what the devil I mean by it. Can't you give me a little more to go on?"

Poirot reflected a moment.

"It can be done," he said at last. "I admit I do not wish it. It forces my hand. I would have preferred to work in the dark just for the present, but what you say is very just—the word of a Belgian policeman, whose day is past, is not enough! And Alfred Inglethorp must not be arrested. That I have sworn, as my friend Hastings here knows. See, then, my good Japp, you go at once to Styles?"

"Well, in about half an hour. We're seeing the Coroner and the doctor first."

"Good. Call for me in passing—the last house in the village. I will go with you. At Styles Mr. Inglethorp will give you, or if he refuses—as is probable—I will give you such proofs that shall satisfy you that the case against him could not possibly be sustained. Is that a bargain?"

"That's a bargain," said Japp heartily. "And, on behalf of the yard, I'm much obliged to you, though I'm bound to confess I can't at present see the faintest possible loop-hole in the evidence, but you always were a marvel! So long, then, mossieur."

The two detectives strode away, Summerhaye with an incredulous grin on his face.

"Well, my friend," cried Poirot, before I could get in a word, "what do you think? Mon Dieu! I had some warm moments in that court; I did not figure to myself that the man would be so pigheaded as to refuse to say anything at all. Decidedly, it was the policy of an imbecile."

"H'm! There are other explanations besides that of imbecility," I remarked. "For, if the case against him is true, how could he defend himself except by silence?"

"Why in a thousand ingenious ways," cried Poirot. "See, say that it is wise have committed this murder, I can think of seven most plausible stories! Far more convincing than Mr. Inglethorp's stony denials."

I could not help laughing.

"My dear Poirot, I am sure you are capable of thinking of 70! But, seriously in spite of what I heard you say to the detectives, you surely cannot still believe in the possibility of Alfred Inglethorp's innocence?"

"Why not now as much as before? Nothing has changed."

"But the evidence is so conclusive."

"Yes, too conclusive."

We turned in at the gate of Least ways Cottage, and proceeded up the now familiar stairs.

"Yes, yes, too conclusive," continued Poirot, almost to unself. "Real evidence is usually vague and unsatisfactory. It has to be examined—sifted. But here the whole thing is cut and dried. No, my friend, this evidence has been very cleverly manufactured—ends."

"How do you make that out?"

"Because, so long as the evidence against him was vague and intangible, it was very hard to disprove. But, in his anxiety, the criminal has drawn the net so closely that one cut will set Inglethorp free."

I was silent. And in a minute or two, Poirot continued:

"Let us look at the matter like this. Here is a man, let us say, who sets out to poison his wife. He has lived by his wits as the saying goes. Presumably, therefore, he has some wits. He is not altogether a fool. Well, how does he set about it. He goes boldly to the village chemist's and purchases strychnine under his own name, with a trumped up story about a dog which is bound to be proved absurd.

"He does not employ the poison that night. No, he waits until he has had a violent quarrel with her, of which the whole household is cognizant, and which naturally directs their suspicions upon him.

He prepares no defense—no shadow of an alibi, yet he knows the chemist's assistant must necessarily come forward with the facts. Bah! do not ask me to believe that any man could be so idiotic! Only a lunatic, who wished to commit suicide by causing himself to be hanged, would act so."

"Still—I do not see—" I began.

"Neither do I see. I tell you, mon ami, it puzzles me. Me—Hercule Poirot!"

"But if you believe him innocent, how do you explain his buying the strychnine?"

"Very simple. He did not buy it."

"But Mace recognised him!"

"I beg your pardon, he saw a man with a black beard like Mr. Inglethorp's, and wearing glasses like Mr. Inglethorp, and dressed in Mr. Inglethorp's rather noticeable clothes. He could not recognise a man whom he had probably only seen in the distance, since, you remember, he himself had only been in the village a fortnight, and Mrs. Inglethorp dealt principally with Coot's in Tadminster."

"Then you think—"

"Mon ami, do you remember the two points I laid stress upon? Leave the first one for the moment, what was the second?"

"The important fact that Alfred Inglethorp wears peculiar clothes, has a black beard, and uses glasses," I quoted.

"Exactly. Now suppose anyone wished to pass himself off as John or Lawrence Cavendish. Would it be easy?"

"No," I said thoughtfully, "Of course an actor—"

But Poirot cut me short ruthlessly.

"And why would it not be easy? I will tell you, my friend: Because they are both clean-shaven men. To make up successfully as one of these two in broad daylight, it would need an actor of genius, and a certain initial facial resemblance. But in the case of Alfred Inglethorp, all that is changed. His clothes, his beard, the glasses which hide his eyes—those are the salient points about his personal appearance. Now, what is the first instinct of the criminal? To divert suspicion from himself, is it not so? And how can he best do that? By throwing it on some one else. In this instance, there was a man ready to his hand. Everybody was predisposed to believe in Mr. Inglethorp's guilt.

"It was a foregone conclusion that he would be suspected; but, to make it a sure thing there must be tangible proof—such as the actual buying of the poison, and that, with a man of the peculiar appearance of Mr. Inglethorp, was not difficult.

"Remember, this young Mace had never actually spoken to Mr. Inglethorp. How should he doubt that the man in his clothes, with his beard and his glasses, was not Alfred Inglethorp?"

"It may be so," I said fascinated by Poirot's eloquence. "But, if that was the case, why does he not say where he was at 8 o'clock on Monday evening?"

"Ah, why indeed?" said Poirot, calming down. "If he were arrested, he probably would speak, but I do not want it to come to that. I must make him see the gravity of his position. There is, of course, something discreditable behind his silence. If he did not murder his wife, he is, nevertheless, a scoundrel, and has something of his own to conceal, quite apart from the murder."

"What can it be" I mused, won over to Poirot's views for the moment, although still retaining a faint contrition that the obvious deduction was the correct one.

"Can you not guess?" asked Poirot, smiling.

"No, can you?"

"Oh, yes, I had a little idea sometime ago—and it has turned out to be correct."

"You never told me," I said reproachfully.

Poirot spread out his hands apologetically.

"Pardon me, mon ami, you were not precisely sympathique." He turned to me earnestly. "Tell me—you see now that he must not be arrested?"

"Perhaps," I said doubtfully, for I was really quite indifferent to the fate of Alfred Inglethorp, and thought that a good fright would do him no harm.

THE HEART STORY OF A WOMAN'S AFFECTIONS

By ADELE GARRISON

Hedge Fumbles With the Tangled Threads

FOR several seconds after Katherine finished, I felt as if the air were vibrant with the echo of her cry: "I don't want you to make the mistake I made." I knew that she never would have spoken of the marital tragedy which was hers had she not felt it her duty and her opportunity to warn me of the error she felt I was in danger of making. And I in turn felt my own problems fade into comparative insignificance as I realized again what a thorny path her patient feet were treading.

It was a path upon which she asked no assistance, however. She rarely spoke of her husband, absent upon an intermediate expedition into the wilds of South America, from which he would not return for many months. But I feared that Jack Burkett's sternness, his objections to her working at her profession while he was absent upon trips which he either could not or would not let her share, and his jealousy, had at last destroyed the wonderful devotion which had been Katherine's and which had dragged her husband back from death.

And Hal Meredith, brilliant alienist, playfellow, almost lover of her youth, was always in the background, waiting, as he had been ever since the suicide of his half insane and wholly evil wife, Lucia, set him free!

That my little kinswoman received occasional letters from Dr. Meredith, I knew, but I had no knowledge of their contents from her. But it was easy to conjecture that they were impassioned appeals to make the decision which would bring him hurrying home to her. Always the receipt of one of those heavy envelopes heralded days of depression for Katherine, during which I guessed she fought anew a battle which had begun at the tragedy which was Lucia Meredith's death.

Sometimes I puzzled over the fact that my sympathies were all enlisted in the cause of the brilliant alienist, when according to convention and the ties of blood, Jack Burkett should have received all my allegiance. Indeed, I often felt that I was guilty of treachery to my cousin, nearest of kin to my dead mother, in my feeling that he was far less fitted to make her happy than was Hal Meredith, and that he less deserved her love. But I could not control my emotional reaction to Katherine's problem, although I was careful never to let her guess that I gave it any thought.

But Katherine is highly pachic and when she rose suddenly to her feet after her significant confidence, I knew that she had read my thoughts, sensed my attitude toward her problem and wished to get away from both immediately lest they influence her.

"I shouldn't have said that to you," she said remorsefully. "After all, each of us has to solve her own problem alone. Just forget I said anything except 'au revoir.'"

She turned away up the hill, giving me no chance to reply. But I knew that her regret at having spoken though vaguely of her marital tragedy, included a fear that I might feel impelled to use the confidence as an excuse to plead Hal Meredith's cause.

With the centuries-worn feeling that life was a skein in which most of the threads were inextricably tangled, I walked back toward the house. As I neared the kitchen, Katie dashed out of the door, and when she saw me, made her hands into a trumpet and called "Telephone!" in tones which I am sure Mrs. Tiver at the next house across the fields could have heard. I quickened my steps and when I reached the steps Katie amplified her information.

"It's long distance, dot girl calls from New York, and nobody else but you or Meester Graham vill do. I told her you almost outside and she say get you to phone, before she puts other party on."

"Oh! a particular person called," I commented, hurrying through the kitchen. "Did she say who it was?"

"She say, but I no understand all your fresh," Katie returned witheringly, but I already had answered my own question. There was no one in New York who would call me except Dicky or me on the same call except the woman whose voice I heard when Central completed the connection—Edith Fairfax.

Every person suffering from old sores and ulcers should know about the mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment. Thousands have used it with joyful success after treatments and other remedies have failed.

"I am not much of a writer, but will give you a good ad for Peterson's Ointment if you care to publish it. I am a woman twenty-four years of age, and have had a running sore just above my ankle for over 10 years. I tried doctors and almost every kind of a salve, but failed to heal it. A year ago I got a box of your Peterson's Ointment and in five day's time I could tell that it was healing. It took only one 35 cent box and two sixty cent boxes in all. So I advise every man, woman or child to use Peterson's Ointment, for it is worth the price and is good to keep on hand."—Mrs. Fay Kosenchuk, Chicago, Ill.

That's the kind of a healing ointment Peterson's is and one 35 cent box from your druggist will prove it.—Adv.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby

—Babies Have Nerves—

By RUTH MATTEAN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Anyone that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting and invariably cause irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverish sour loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million babies used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.—Adv.

TWO POPULAR STARS TALK ABOUT CLOTHES

New York, N. Y.—Mary Lawlor, star of "Good News," and Polly Walker, star of "The Merry Malones," may disagree, as prima donnas will, about the merits of their respective musical shows, but they agree on one point.

The well-dressed star, they both say, knows that the one way to keep stockings and frocks and underthings like new is with Lux.

"Lux is always in my dressing room," Polly Walker adds. "And I insist upon my maid's using only Lux for my show clothes and my own personal things, because I can't bear to lose a favorite gown or negligee through careless washing."

A recent survey showed that the producers of every musical show in New York specify Lux for the stockings and costumes of chorines, because they say washing with Lux keeps lovely filmy things new-looking twice as long as other methods.

Lever Brothers Co., largest soap makers in the world and makers of Lux, take great pride in the savings in clothes and money made possible through the use of Lux.

The great movie studios also use Lux to get double wear from costumes. And department stores estimate that Lux has saved American women at least a billion dollars through double wear from fabrics.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday, and it was a nice day. When I went to take the cows out to the pasture my father hollered after me to watch out for snakes. I bet we thinks if I got snake bit he would have to milk the cows. My mother said snakes are bad this year, and I wanted to know if they aren't bad every year, and my ant said to me with a be-patient-to-a-dumbhead look. "Your mother means they are very thick this year." And I said it was a thick ant Pickle killed all right, and my grandfather laughed and my ant said if I dassed wassass how she would slap me over.

I didn't know what she was talking about. Then my grandfather laughed and everyone went and gathered around him to see what he was looking at in the grass, and there was a garter of a girl snake and just soon as I grabbed with both a hand and a foot on the head of the garter and then when I got it all I had a hold of the garter snake and it was a garter snake all right, and my grandfather said it was a good thing I got a hold of the head of the garter snake and not a hold of the garter snake's head, because the garter snake's head would have bit me, but the garter snake couldn't bite me because I had a hold of the head of the garter snake and not a hold of the garter snake's head, and my grandfather said I was a good boy to get a hold of the garter snake's head and not a hold of the garter snake, and I said I was a good boy to get a hold of the garter snake's head and not a hold of the garter snake
